

UCL

MA in Medieval and Renaissance Studies

- Research-based teaching within walking distance to world-famous libraries, museums and archives in London.
- Small-group teaching and intensive dissertation supervision across disciplines.
- Exceptional research skills, including palaeography and languages.
- Funding opportunities both at the departmental level and specific to this programme.
- Deadline for applications: 5 April 2024 (All eligible applications will be considered for scholarships.)

Find the MARS Centre online

UCL

Medieval and Renaissance Studies in London

London offers outstanding opportunities for postgraduate study in Medieval and Renaissance studies. The British Library, British Museum, Wellcome Collection, the Institute of Historical Research and the Warburg Institute are all close to the UCL campus. The MARS MA makes full use of these resources, with teaching and object handling sessions in all these institutions.

Interdisciplinary Options

We offer a wide range of interdisciplinary module options of any MA programme. Annual options may include:

- Medieval Manuscripts and Documents
- Gaia's Ancestors: Approaches to medieval ecologies & environments
- Magic in the Middle Ages
- Medieval Archaeology
- Politics of the Soul in Early Modern Europe
- Reframing the Renaissance
- A Global History of the Middle Ages?
- Language tuition in Latin, Medieval French, Old and Middle English, Norse, and modern European languages.

Online Open Days: Tuesday 21 November 10-11am GMT. Wednesday 22 November 4-5pm GMT. Zoom links for open day at ucl.ac.uk/history

Study at a global top-ranking university

UCL has been awarded the University of the Year 2024 by the Times and Sunday Times Good University Guide and has ranked in the top ten universities in the world for the twelfth year running in the 2024 QS university rankings.

"The past twelve months as a MARS MA student has been the most intellectually stimulating period in my life. The wide range of modules available to a MA student here is remarkable. It is common to share one's epiphany with both peers and supervisors over social drinks and, rather impressively, the doors of leading scholars' offices are always open to students, even during the summer season. In a word, the MARS MA is an optimal preparation for world-class intellects."

- Gan Quan, MARS MA Graduate, currently studying for a funded PhD at the University of Texas at Austin